NUMB. 4083

THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1745.

Vienna, February 27.

LL the Military Preparations in the Queen's Hereditary Dominions, are carried on with equal Vigour and Success. The Duke, Co-Regent, and Prince Charles, divert themselves frequently by Hunting in our Neighbourhood; assist regularly at the Councils held in the Palace; and at the Conference of the Chancellor Count Ulfeldt's. There has been great Doubts entertain'd here, as to the Success of the Propositions made by the Courts of France and of Munich; which has hinder'd this Court from being so forward to enter into any Negotiation, as it might have been. There are still some who are of Opinion, that it is to command in Chief. Many are of Opinion, that the Friends of Prince Charles will be able to preserve him in his Post; others are rather of Opinion, that, to oblige the Emperor, her Majesty will send back Field-Marshal Traun. It is currently reported he is the main Object of the next Campaign will be the recovery of Bavaria and Silesia, driving the French once more out of the Empire, and, perhaps, regaining the whole, as well as the anterior Austria, before the Close of the Campaign.

March 12. The Court of Spain, since the Arrival of the Gallies, appears more dispos'd to carry on the War in Italy than ever; notwithstanding the immense Expence with which it has been hitherto attended. It is however certain, that the Spaniards are weary of Expeditions, as well as of pursuing the Schemes of our Generals. This appears plainly, from the Resolution taken to execute the Spanish Plan of last Year, for joining both their Armies in the Dominions of Genoa; and by their demanding M. Maillebourg to command the Army of France that is to form an Expedition, by penetrating again as far as Coni, if it be found practicable. In the mean time a Report is spread, that if the King would once more send an Expedition to Turin, in order to try if it be not possible to throw the King of Sardinia from his Confederation with the Queen of Hungary and the Maritime Powers, by offering him an Augmentation of his Domain, and some extraordinary Advantages in Point of Commerce, in Favour of his Subjects.

March 17. We are informed, that a very considerable Quantity of Bayonets and Pistols, that have been purchased at Liege, for the Use of the Crown Army, will be speedily sent from thence to Ham- burg, and so to Dantzick. It is reported, that his Majesty intends to return into his Regal Dominions a little after Easter, in order to hold an extraordinary Diet, in which the Accession of the Republick to the Treaty of Warfaw, is to be propos'd. We still expect to talk of the Czarina's Accession to that Treaty, a Thing almost certain; and it is believed, that she will be shortly sent from thence to Copenhagen, in order to engage his Danish Majesty to take the same Step. The Military Conferences between the Powers of the Allies are daily continued; and we are told, that the Expence of the Sieges, and the Proportion of Troops to be employed in Garisons, are already settled. In the mean time, the French, Spanish, and Austrian Ministers, leave no Stone unturn'd to engage the English Ministers to frame a Kind of Preliminaries of General Pacification, to be propos'd to the Powers before the opening of the Campaign, that it may be known whether it be not possible to prevent the shedding of Blood by a Negotiation; but they have been so far from understanding, that this is not a very feasible Project, and that it would be better if Proposals of Peace were made directly from the Powers that began the War.

March 17. His Excellency the Earl of Holderness has made a great Progress in his Journey to Venice; and we are likewise assur'd, that the Genoese begin to slacken their Military Preparations, and to discover an Inclination of recurring to the old Plan of Neutrality, provided the Maritime Powers will accept of the Renunciation offer'd by his Sardinian Majesty, of all his Pretensions on the Marguare of Final; which, however, thought a Point not easily to be
